

Pensionomics 2021:

Measuring the Economic Impact of DB Pension Expenditures

Overview

Expenditures made by retirees of state and local government provide a steady economic stimulus to Washington communities and the state economy. In 2018, 201,570 residents of Washington received a total of $4.7 billion in pension benefits from state and local pension plans.

The average pension benefit received was $1,936 per month or $23,229 per year. These modest benefits provide retired teachers, public safety personnel, and others who served the public during their working careers income to meet basic needs in retirement.

Between 1993 and 2018, 17.51% of Washington's pension fund receipts came from employer contributions, 9.28% from employee contributions, and 73.21% from investment earnings.* Earnings on investments and employee contributions—not taxpayer based contributions—have historically made up the bulk of pension fund receipts.

Impact on Jobs and Incomes

Retiree expenditures stemming from state and local pension plan benefits supported 38,204 jobs in the state. The total income to state residents supported by pension expenditures was $2.4 billion.

To put these employment impacts in perspective, in 2018 Washington's unemployment rate was 4.5%. The fact that DB pension expenditures supported 38,204 jobs is significant, as it represents 1.12 percentage points in Washington's labor force.

Economic Impact

State and local pension funds in Washington and other states paid a total of $4.7 billion in benefits to Washington residents in 2018. Retirees' expenditures from these benefits supported a total of $7.7 billion in total economic output in the state, and $4.7 billion in value added in the state.

$3.5 billion in direct economic impacts were supported by retirees' initial expenditures. An additional $2.3 billion in indirect impact resulted when these businesses purchased additional goods and services. $1.8 billion in induced impacts occurred when workers employed by businesses as a result of the direct and indirect impacts made expenditures.

Key Findings

Benefits paid by state and local pension plans support a significant amount of economic activity in the state of Washington.

Pension benefits received by retirees are spent in the local community. This spending ripples through the economy, as one person's spending becomes another person's income, creating a multiplier effect.

In 2018, expenditures stemming from state and local pensions supported...

- 38,204 jobs that paid $2.4 billion in wages and salaries
- $7.7 billion in total economic output
- $1.2 billion in federal, state, and local tax revenues

... in the state of Washington.

Each dollar paid out in pension benefits supported $1.65 in total economic activity in Washington.

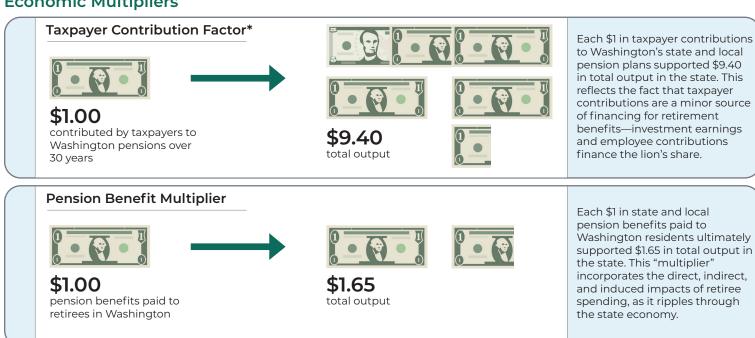

Each dollar "invested" by Washington taxpayers in these pension plans supported $9.40 in total economic activity in the state.

Total Economic Impact $7.7 billion

DIRECT IMPACT $3.5 billion

INDIRECT IMPACT $2.3 billion INDUCED IMPACT $1.8 billion
